WORLD'S LARGEST ARENA BUILT OF SOUTHERN PINE
FOR WILLARD-DEMPEY BOUT WILL SEAT 80,000 PEOPLESection of the Stand
under Construction

It takes a sawmill and miles of lumber to stage a championship prize fight these days.

At the site of the Willard-Dempsey arena in the suburbs of Toledo, Ohio, where two claimants for a world's title will battle July 4, a big construction job is under way. Eighty thousand people are expected to witness the contest, and to accommodate this immense crowd the largest stand ever built for a prize fight is now rapidly taking shape.

A million and three-quarters feet of Southern Pine lumber is required for the erection of the stadium, which is half a mile in circumference and 600 feet across, with a maximum height of 35 feet from the bleacher seats to the ground. This lumber would be sufficient to build a board walk three feet wide and 110 miles long. To transport it to Toledo from the pine forests of the South 87 heavily loaded freight cars were required. A small sawmill has been set up in the 24-foot ring, to cut the lumber to lengths. Hundreds of carpenters and other workmen are engaged on the job.

This is the second of the great arenas erected in this country in recent years for a prize fight, the first having been at Reno, Nevada. The Reno stand was also built of Southern Pine, which is a wood especially adapted to construction undertakings of this character, because it is comparatively cheap and possesses the strength to stand up under heavy weight. A prize fight stand, no less than the fighters, must be able to "take punishment."

A solid carload of the famous Missouri Meerschmum corn cob pipes—500,000 of 'em—was shipped from Washington last week for Paris.

SHE WAS NOT FOOLED

The visitor claimed to be a good pianist with unusual ability in reading music on sight. Seeing a sheet of music on the piano rack she sat down and began playing, pounding the keys with little regard for correctness of time. Observing the small daughter of the household watching her earnestly, the would-be-admired player pressed harder on the loud pedal, lifted her hands higher, and ended with a flourish.

Whirling around on the stool, she bestowed a patronizing smile upon the child, who, looking up naively, remarked: "I can't play that, either."

A MODERN DRAMA

The Hero—Where is the che-i-t-i-d, Oswald?

The Villain—I have him in my custody.

The Hero—And the papers, what have you done with them?

The Villain—I have them at the blacksmith shop.

The Hero—You are having them forged, then? Curious!

The Villain—No, I am having them filed.

THE GENIUS

Tramp—Please, sir, will you give me a shillin' to git somethin' to eat?

Benevolent Gentleman—You've got a sixpence in your hand now. What's that for?

Tramp—That's to tip the waiter.

Remember how the republican politicians howled about Wilson's delay in calling a special session of Congress and how professedly anxious they were to take up "the badly needed legislation incident to reconstruction?" Congress has now been in session several weeks and the only thing so far legislated has been some dirty peanut political attacks on the President that tends to humiliate the nation in the eyes of the rest of the world.—Galatin Democrat.

One by one Republican "issues" have vanished like will o' the wisps.

The conduct of the war, the making of peace, the league of nations—all have failed them as partisan battle cries. Only the tariff remains, but it is so old and decrepit and feeble that it may shortly pass away.—Boonville Advertiser.

A RACE FOR LIFE

A distant German machine gun got the range.

"Plack-plack-ity-plack-plack!" It remarked.

Two negro infantrymen from Dixie started for the Tropic of Something, away down south, where it was safe.

After an hour's hard running one of them looked back.

"Hy there, niggah!" he shouted, "look at them flies a-follown' you."

"Get out ob mah way, fool!" yelled the other one. "Them ain't flies. Them's bullets!"

HOW THE USHER GOT EVEN

Church Usher (confidentially)—

That woman I just seated is Mrs. Stuckup. She had me sent around to the back door when I called one day on a business errand. Made me transact the business through a servant, too. But I've got even with her.

Friend—You have given her one of the best pews in the church.

Usher—Wait half an hour. She's right where a stained glass window will throw a red light on her nose.

IT SMACKED OF OSCULATION

Inspector—Do you teach observation?

Teacher—Yes.

Inspector—Ten I will test the class.

Now, children, shut your eyes and sit still. The inspector made a slow whistling sort of noise and followed with, "Now, children, what did I do?"

For some time there was no answer, but ultimately one little boy

pipled out: "Kissed teacher."

A CASE FOR A VETERINARY

The Doctor—You have a light attack of broncho-pneumonia.

Woolsey West—Now, ain't that tough luck? Here I've been breaking and ridin' bronchos all my life an'

never ketchin' nothin' from 'em till I come east.

THE ORIGINAL SKEPTIC

Jonah, after his sojourn in the

whale's belly, was trying to square

himself with his wife for his protracted absence. "It sounds rather fishy to me," sniffed Mrs. Jonah, suspiciously.

AND SPEND HIS MONEY

Daughter—Marry that old Mr. Rox-

ley? Why, I'd die first!

Mother—Nonsense, child! You'd survive him forty years at least.

And it was truly provoking after the anti-Wilson bunch in the Senate

had sneaked a copy of the peace treaty by devious and secret methods

had published it to the country at the expense of a great many thousands of dollars, and found all kinds of fault

with it, to learn that it was not the peace treaty at all but that another and entirely different one was about completed and would be made public

when finished.—Henry County Democrat.

In attempting to kill himself the crown prince of Rumania shot himself in the leg. Probably didn't know which end of him was head and which foot.—Kansas City Post.

Now that the Senate has passed the franchise amendment there seems to be no place for the militants to go

but to the prize ring.—St. Louis

Times.

But of course nobody can be sure that Captain Alcock's feat was everything it should have been until Mr.

Hawker is heard from.—Kansas City

Post.

UNSUCCESSFUL ARTISTS AS

WIVES

Geraldine Farrar said at a tea at

Sherry's:

"Girls who have gone in for the arts, failed, and then married as a last resort, make poor wives.

"I know a girl who married after falling in music. It is reported that her husband said one night in his

cups:

"My wife used to play the guitar.

Now she—she—picks on me."

Republican Chairman Hays finds

that "the interest in the west is in national questions, with the high point of appreciation being centered

in what congress is doing with efficiency and economy." Wonderful discovery! What power of analysis and penetration!—Kansas City Post.
